

Subject: Fwd: NYTimes: Why Corporate America Is Leaving the Suburbs for the City
From: "Nick Griffin" <@>
Date: 08/03/2016 08:19 AM
To: cschatz@ccala.org

Did you see this article about companies moving back into downtowns?

<http://www.nytimes.com/2016/08/02/business/economy/why-corporate-america-is-leaving-the-suburbs-for-the-city.html?smprod=nytcore-iphone&smid=nytcore-iphone-share>

And the next day we get news of K-Swiss moving into PacMutual, with the following quote, which we couldn't have written better ourselves!

"As our organization grows, we feel there will be an intrinsic benefit to immersing in the progressive culture of downtown Los Angeles," said Truman Kim, chairman and chief executive of K-Swiss Global Brands. "Our new location will afford us a better opportunity to identify market trends where they happen."

<https://www.apparelnews.net/news/2016/aug/02/k-swiss-moving-headquarters-historic-downtown-los-/>

Nicholas Ziff Griffin
Director of Economic Development
Downtown Center Business Improvement District
ngriffin@downtownla.com / (213) 416-7522

Begin forwarded message:

From: Nick Griffin <nickgriffin@gmail.com>
Date: August 1, 2016 at 9:45:24 PM PDT
To: Nicholas Ziff Griffin <ngriffin@downtownla.com>
Subject: NYTimes: Why Corporate America Is Leaving the Suburbs for the City

<http://www.nytimes.com/2016/08/02/business/economy/why-corporate-america-is-leaving-the-suburbs-for-the-city.html?smprod=nytcore-iphone&smid=nytcore-iphone-share>

Companies including McDonald's and General Electric are moving headquarters to cities like Boston and Chicago, partly as a lure to younger employees.